New cohort to begin
August 2022

About the program

Designed specifically for teacher leaders in international schools, this program is framed around the Teacher Leader Model Standards (Teacher Leadership Exploratory Consortium) and built upon research-based teacher leader standards that lead to competencies necessary for assuming instructional and school leadership roles.

A quality education

- The University of Northern Iowa is recognized internationally for its commitment to international education, as evidenced through its long-standing UNI Career Services Overseas Recruiting Fair and international student teaching placements.
- Instruction is provided by faculty with practical and research-based experiences in leadership, international education, curriculum, and educational psychology.
- A cohort model is utilized to provide collaborative learning as the group of students progresses through the six-semester sequence together.
- Careful consideration has been given to accommodate the unique needs of practicing K-12 teachers in international settings.
